A Playbook for Winning the Cyber War: Part 1: Executive Summary

The United States has been losing a cyber war it didn't know it was fighting. To reverse this trend line and make full use of its strengths, Washington needs a new way of thinking about cyber conflict, national security tools, and the spectrum of war and peace.

Addressing China's military expansion in West Africa and beyond

As China expands its military reach in West Africa, the United States risks losing strategic ground on the continent. The next National Defense Strategy must confront China's ambitions beyond the Indo-Pacific, balancing defense diplomacy, bilateral military relationships, and counterterrorism.

Europe: spending defence euros and dollars

In the last three and a half years, the EU has stepped up efforts to strengthen the European Defence Technological and Industrial Base, aiming to ensure its members can meet their defence requirements. The mantra of EU defence cooperation has been to spend more, better, together, and to reduce dependencies on third countries. But are countries ready to reduce reliance on the US?
